Sir,

I am directed to say that the Hon'ble Prime Minister desires that no Guards of Honour be provided for him during his tours, except on very special occasions when a rule or convention requires this. Generally, such special occasions are the public arrival or departure of the Hon'ble Prime Minister, when as a mark of respect, arrangements are made by the State to receive him in a formal or ceremonial manner. Normally speaking, Guards of Honour should be provided only for the President during his official visits.

Yours faithfully,
